CIRCUIT COURT IS COMING ON

Yesterday Was the Last Day For Filing Suits For Spring Term.

MANY MURDER CASES.

The Four Pembroke Cases Are Set For The Fifth Day, March 5.

Yesterday was the last day for filing suits for the spring term of Circuit court, which begins here Monday, February 27, for a six weeks' session. There are 520 cases on the docket, divided as follows: 56 equity appearances, 33 common law cases, 5 appeals, 264 continued equity cases, 49 common law cases, 113 commonwealth cases.

There are several murder cases to be tried at the term. They are set as follows:

George Griffin, 2nd day; Marshall Young, 3rd day; Robert Lewis, 4th day; "Tissue Paper, Jack" Hardison, 4th day; Charles Finch, Ed Moseley, Dick Carney and Frank Merriwether, 5th day and Mack Hearn, 7th day.

Several suits for damages have been filed with the circuit clerk since our last report. J. H. Gilbert, Admr. of Amos Gilbert, sues the L. & N. for $10,000. It is alleged in this petition that Amos Gilbert, who was a section hand at work in Hopkins county, was thrown from a hand-car and sustained injuries that caused his death.

George McKinney, col., filed suit against the city of Hopkinsville, and city workhouse manager, E. C. Outlaw, for $500 damages. Plaintiff claims that while he was working out a fine on the streets one day last December he was assaulted with a stick by Mr. Outlaw, who was in charge of the prisoners, and that his scalp was cut open, the injury causing him to be laid up for a week.

J. P. Brown brings suit against the Forbes Manufacturing Company for $1,620. Plaintiff claims that he was employed by the defendant to work on the outside, but was put to work to rip lumber. He further states he was unfamiliar with such work, the machinery, etc., and that one of his hands was cut off at the finger joints by a saw.

STATE Y. M. C. A.

In Session at Owensboro this Week.

Owensboro, Ky., Feb. 16.—The twenty-seventh annual convention of the Kentucky Young Men's Christian Association opened at the Third Baptist church to-night under favorable auspices. Between 400 and 500 delegates are expected to be in attendance to-morrow. About 400 have already arrived. The State officers are a unit in predicting that the convention will be one of the most successful ever held in the State. Notable Y. M. C. A. workers from all parts of the United States are in attendance and will deliver addresses.

AGED PATIENT

At Western Asylum Died This Week.

Miss Sallie Sutton, an asylum patient sent here for treatment from Louisville, died at the institution Wednesday. She was 60 years old. The remains were shipped to Louisville Thursday for interment.

The Forbes Manufacturing Co. has bought out the Wilson Hardware Co., of Pembroke, and consolidated the stock with its Pembroke house.

ELEVEN RECRUITS IN SENATE.

New Comers Who Will Take Seats on March Fourth.

ONE NEW DEMOCRAT.

In Two States The Legislatures Are Still In Deadlocks.

The U. S. Senate is composed of ninety Senators, and after March 4 next the Republicans will have fifty-nine and the Democrats thirty-one. This count gives the Republicans a Senator from Delaware and a Senator from Missouri, now deadlocked as to choice. There will be eleven new Senators in the Senate. The newcomers in the Senate will be:

Frank P. Flint, of California, to succeed Senator Thos. A. Bard, Republican.

Elmer J. Burkett, of Nebraska, to succeed Senator Charles H. Dietrich, Republican.

Samuel Piles, of Washington, to succeed Addison G. Foster, Republican.

Ex-Senator Thomas H. Carter, of Montana, to succeed Senator Paris Gibson, Democrat.

Morgan G. Bulkeley, of Connecticut, to succeed Senator Joseph R. Hawley, whose health did not permit him to become a candidate for re-election.

George Sutherland, of Utah, to succeed Senator Thomas Kearns, Republican.

Isidor Raynor, of Maryland, to succeed Senator Louis E. McComas, Republican.

Gov. Robert M. La Follette, of Wisconsin, to succeed Senator Jos. V. Quarles, Republican.

George S. Nixon of Nevada, to succeed Senator William M. Stewart, Republican.

Mr. Raynor, of Maryland, is the only Democratic Senator to enter the Senate. Under the present policy of the President, and from his well-known and independent attitude on public questions, it is believed that La Follette, of Wisconsin, will often vote with the Democrats on important questions at issue.

ROY GREEN

Is Hanged at Owensboro For Murder.

Owensboro, Ky., Feb. 17.—Roy Green, a negro boy seventeen years of age, died on the gallows this morning for the brutal murder of James Coomes, a white man, at the Fair Grounds, on July 31, 1904. The trap was sprung by Deputy Sheriff Harry Cooper. The request of Sheriff Short, who is ill, to postpone the hanging was denied by Gov. Beckham.

The crime for which Green was hanged was one of the most atrocious ever committed in the State. After crushing the skull of his victim he drove a stake through his neck pinning him to the ground.

Purchased a Plat.

Nortonville, Feb. 16.—The L. & N. Railroad Company has purchased a plat of ground in Nortonville for the purpose of erecting residences and a boarding house for employees.

Store Robbed.

The general merchandise store of Rogers Bros., at Guthrie, was broken into Tuesday night and a considerable amount of goods was stolen.

Company D. will hereafter drill on Tuesday nights instead of Monday nights. Members take notice and govern themselves accordingly.
E. W. CLARK,
Acting Captain.

TWO MORE SENTENCED TO DEATH.

One Man Was Hung at Owensboro Yesterday For Murder.

FOURTEEN TO FOLLOW.

Two New Ones Convicted This Week In The State.

At the beginning of this week there were thirteen men awaiting execution in Kentucky, most of them for murder. Up to Thursday two more had been given death sentences, making 15 at one time and breaking the record in this state.

The two new ones added to the list were Garth Thompkins, col., at Madisonville, for the murder of Jim Brame, col., and James Pearsall, at Lexington, for criminal assault upon Mrs. Wagoner on Jan. 20th. Justice in this case was swift and the jury was out only twenty minutes.

Yesterday, at Owensboro, Roy Green, col., the first of the 15 to swing, met death on the scaffold, leaving 14 more yet under sentence. Another will be hanged Feb. 24th.

PUT THREE BULLETS

Into Blount Hodge for Attention to His Wife.

Dr. F. G. LaRue, of Smithland, aged 38, shot and badly wounded Blount Hodge, a river pilot, aged 26, Monday, because of Hodge's attentions to the Doctor's handsome young wife. Things got so bad that Dr. LaRue left his wife and put three bullets into Hodge, who is a son of Hon. J. C. Hodge. Hodge was left for dead on the street, but the latest is that he will survive his wounds.

Col. F. G. Ewing is back from New York and says the outlook for the boys in the Black Patch is rosier than ever. If Col. Ewing gets what he is after for the tobacco growers, we will all be for him for joint Governor of both Tennessee and Kentucky.

AUTHOR OF "BEN-HUR" IS NO MORE.

Greatest Work of Fiction During the Nineteenth Century.

GENERAL AND WRITER.

One of Indiana's Great Men Lost in the Death of Gen. Lew Wallace.

Crawfordsville, Ind., Feb. 15.—General Lew Wallace, the distinguished author, soldier and statesman, died at 9:10 to-night at his home in this city, surrounded by his immediate relatives. The end came suddenly, for while he had been ill for more than a year and during the last few weeks his condition had been regarded as serious, his friends did not realize that there was occasion for immediate alarm.

Victim of Cancer.

Though neither his physicians nor members of his family have disclosed the general's trouble, it is known that he died of cancer of the stomach, though he himself supposed it was merely acute indigestion.

Story of His Life.

Lewis Wallace, or, as he preferred to call himself, "Lew" Wallace, was born in Brookville, Ind., April 20, 1827, the son of David Wallace, who was elected governor of Indiana in 1837. From his mother he inherited a love of literature and art; from his father decided military as well as literary tastes.

He was only 16 years old when he produced his first novel, a manuscript of about 300 closely written pages, entitled "The Man at Arms, a Tale of the Tenth Century." The story never was published, young Wallace using it to amuse his friends. In his eighteenth year he began to write "The Fair God," his readings of Mexico having inspired him to the task. He had scarcely started the story when the Mexican war broke out, and, fired with patriotic ardor, he joined a company and went to the front as a second lieutenant. Returning from the war he resumed the study of law and engaged in politics. It was twelve years before he had finished "The Fair God," and some time later before he submitted it to the publishers.

Work in the Civil War.

When the civil war began and the call for troops came to the State of Indiana, Wallace showed his military ability by organizing the Eleventh Indiana Volunteers in three days. He was at this time a state senator, and his services were promptly recognized by Gov. Morton with the appointment of adjutant general of the state. He accepted the office with the stipulation that he should be allowed to go to the front, and was appointed colonel of the Eleventh Regiment. As colonel he served with distinction and honor in West Virginia, and at Fort Donelson won a major-generalship.

Gen. Wallace's fame as an author, rests on "Ben-Hur." Next to "Uncle Tom's Cabin," no book written by an American has been so widely read and admired.

After service as Minister to Turkey, he wrote his third novel, "A Prince of India; or the Fall of Constantinople." This was published in 1894, achieving marked success.

Judge Harland's Son.

John Maynard Harlan was nominated unanimously by the Republican convention in Chicago for Mayor of that city. Mr. Harlan, is the son of Justice Harlan, of the Supreme Court, and was born at Frankfort in 1864.
